

For The Record - Versatile album tote bags, bowls, purses, bracelets, notebooks made from classic LP records

JUNE 15, 2004 - WASHINGTON, DC - Eco-Artware.com is demonstrating how to put oldies but goodies to new use. For music aficionados, album collectors, or retro-minded fashion divas: one of a kind fashion statements made from classic long playing records.

These unique tote bags feature velcro-enclosed clear vinyl sides that hold two different authentic record jackets; a Beatles, Rolling Stones, or Bruce Springsteen album cover on one side, and a random rock favorite on the second side. Created by designer Meg Musick-Makely, these bags are very cool because of their sincere practicality, and when a new look - or new musical theme - is desired, the covers can be recycled with others in your collection. Two amplifier knobs (that actually turn) decorate the sides and the two-inch wide shoulder strap is adjustable.

Another unique Musick-Makely creation is the Vintage Vinyl Record Bracelet. When her pre-teen daughter dropped and cracked a favorite 33-1/3 record, Meg cut out the label to preserve the wonderful associations she had with the record. As she sliced across the surface, she got the idea to transform the label into a bracelet. The rest is record-breaking history, and we're proud to feature these vinyl cuff bracelets featuring various artists.

Still not rockin' enough? One of Eco-Artware.com's most popular items continues to be Vinyl Record Bowls - decorative centerpiece bowls molded from genuine LPs. The fabulous bowls are sealed with mylar so that nothing falls through the spindle hole, and are great for holding non-liquid food items or display pieces. The bowls can be accented by a set of Vinyl Record Coasters or the very timely Vinyl Record Clock.

Everyone from aspiring lyricists to autograph seekers will love our one-of-a-kind Album Cover Notebooks. Each is designed using authentic vintage LP album covers. And if that alone isn't cool enough, the notebook's paper is made with 100 percent recovered cotton denim, harvested from denim clothing manufacturers in the U.S. (We don't know, however, how much of the denim comes from bell-bottoms.)

There's no doubt that rock and roll is here to stay - in more ways than one - at Eco-Artware.com.

ABOUT ECO-ARTWARE.COM - Eco-Artware.com has something for every budget, for every taste, and especially for a friendlier planet. Words don't do these products justice, visit <http://www.eco-artware.com> for photos and specifications. If your audience is looking for an ideal, unique gift that also promotes greener consumerism, or are looking for resources on creating their own gifts, book reviews, recycling tips, and access to our renown 'Recycling Rag' newsletter, send them this way.

If you need high resolution images of any of Eco-Artware.com's products, or have further questions, please contact Reena Kazmann at reena@eco-artware.com, or toll free at 1-877-326-2781.